Activities and interests abound

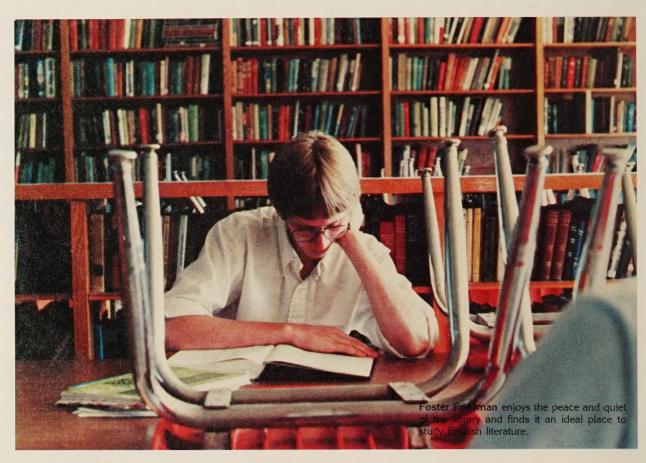

One more summer had gone and one more school year had begun. Along with a new school year came new teachers and many students with new thoughts and ideas. These thoughts and ideas composed the rainbow of interests which led the faculty and students through a year of activities and events.

With the county as executive head of the School Board, students poured into the school on August twenty-sixth and met many changes. Students and teachers came to school and began work under a new roof which had been constructed during the summer. The sidewalk in front of the building became the new "smoking porch".

New attendance policies for unexcused absences were set and Mr.

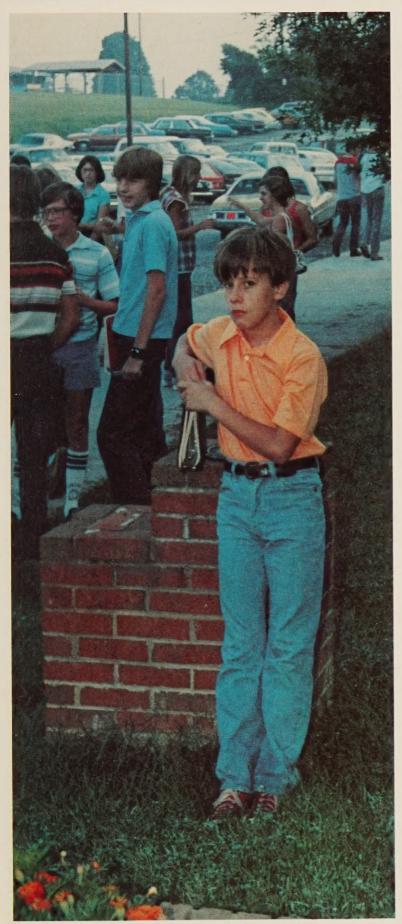

Varsity cheerleaders lead the chants at the William Byrd football game, in which our team was narrowly defeated by a score of 10-8.

represented the school well, as they participated throughout the school year. Sports is an example of school life but the students and the faculty were also participating in community life.

Many seniors voted for the first time and local elections found Frank Nolen in the State Senate and Jim Davis and Lacey Putney in the House of Delegates. Voters elected our own Nanalou Sauder to the Rockbridge County Board of Supervisors—the talent at LHS is always apparent.

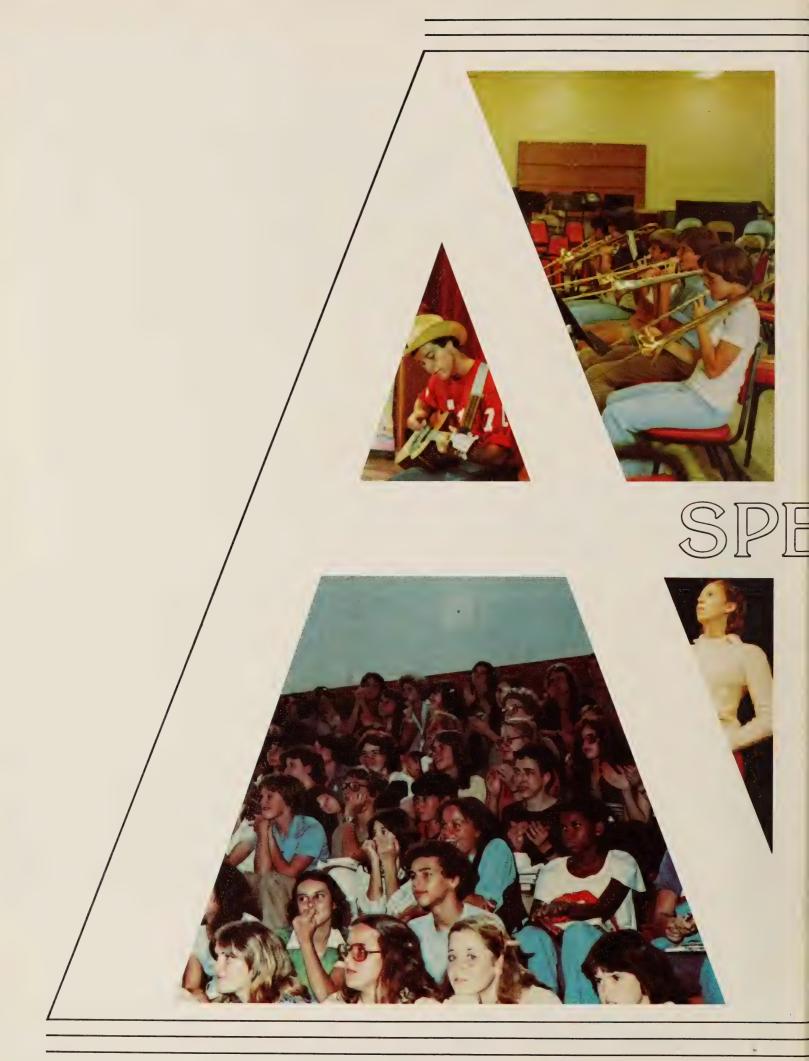

The different activities which were performed during this year were largely the result of the rainbow of interests which the students and faculty possessed. As you look back over this year, remember how nice it was to be part of that rainbow.

CHRONO

"Hey, John! Going to the Homecoming Dance?"

"No, the new attendance official, Mr. Warren, caught me for skipping and when he told my parents, they grounded me for a month."

"Oh, too bad! Well, anyway you'll be able to watch the girls play in the junior-senior powderpuff game."

"Yeah, and I'm already planning on asking someone to the Christmas Dance. Are you going?"

"No, I'm going out of town on a skiing trip around Christmas and I'll be busy with school work. I just hope that I can keep my grades up, but with this new system where exams count one-fourth of the semester average, I'm gonna have to study for those things!"

"Me too, but you know something? In spite of that, I'm really looking forward to this year. There's so much going on—so many interests. There's Homecoming, powderpuff, sports, clubs, dances, vacations, field trips, plays, guest speakers, Prom, and lots of other stuff. I'm really planning on a great year..."

"Despite the fact that you got caught for skipping, right?"

"Well, ...

"Well, let's go get something to eat!"

"O.K., let's go!"

"School's out for the summer!"

"School's out for the summer!" The last day of school signaled the beginning of summer vacation and the beginning of events typical of every summer. Because of the gas shortage, many local residents decided to vacation in Virginia, either going to the sunny beach or the shady mountains. Students flocked to places like Goshen Pass and the local swimming pools and the new pool at Lake Robertson gave everyone just one more place to swim and to "catch some rays".

and Mark Morgan participated in Boys' State and Janet Kirkley participated in Governor's School. Others went to basketball, cheerleading and yearbook camps. Summer jobs and the local tennis clinic kept many occupied and the end of the summer found the football team getting ready for its next big season. All these activities together demonstrated the rainbow of interests which kept the students together while summer vacation kept them apart.

A common question that is asked after summer vacation is, "What'd you do all summer?"

"Well, I spent two weeks at the beach with my family and then my aunt and uncle took me to their summer cabin in the mountains, and then I worked for three weeks at the pool. How about you? Did you have fun this summer?"

"Yeah."

"What did you do?"

"Oh, ... nothing."

It just goes to prove—a rainbow of interests.

Array of events occupy week

The week of October 15-19 was feet day, and red and white day. For filled with activities and events as students and faculty members celebrated Homecoming at LHS. As each student participated in Homecoming activities, a rainbow of interests could be discerned in the group.

The Homecoming dress-up days were hippie day, head day, kids day, each day winners were chosen and the pep squad gave the winners free tickets to the football game on Friday night.

On Wednesday night students flocked to see The Ghost in the Invisible Bikini, which was a film sponsored by the SCA. Before the football game on Friday night there was

Despite the loss to R. E. Lee in the football game, the spirit of Lexington students did not die. On Saturday night many students and teachers came to the senior-sponsored Homecoming Dance—"Over the Rainbow". The dance, which was a disco, was a huge success and everyone agreed that this year's Homecoming was one of the best.

Students entered fall with the same eagerness that accompanied the beginning of school. As they participated in fall sports and other activities, students displayed the rainbow of interests that makes them individuals and yet makes them a group.

The annual magazine drive assembly got the season going for everyone as students sold magazines in order to reach the $10,000 goal. Everyone got an unexpected holiday on October 10 as students and teachers alike awoke to see the ground covered with the white blanket of snow that usually only comes to Lexington around January.

The Lexington High School Mirth and Melancholy players brought home the Valley District title from the one-act play festival with their oneact play, "Louder, I Can't Hear You!" A story about a typical family, this Bill Gleason production presents comedy in real life as the family members carry out their everyday routines, not paying any attention to each other and oblivious to any world but their own. Members of the cast included Andrea LaRue, as the daughter, Ann; Mike McNeese as the son, Junior. The father was played by Alex Hughes and the loony Dr. Philips by Patrick Berry. Tammi Moore played the part of the nurse, and Nancy Lowery won the Best Actress award for her performance as the mother.

The Players also produced another one-act comedy, "The Future is in Eggs." From the theater of the absurd, this play by Eugine lonesco tells the story of two families who strive to preserve the egg race. Carol Taylor, Lisa Davis, Gary Flint, Darrin Friend, Pam Grose, Bill Mapp, Mattie Robinson, Cyndi Weeks and Neil Wills made up the cast of this futuristic play. Others in the skit included Holly Lowsley as the sheriff, Darrin Friend as the town Sayer, Bill Mapp as "obnotious little Irving," Jennifer Wheeling as the stem lady and Nora McGillivray. The melodrama was one of the acts seen in "Act I, Scene 3," a dessert theater and variety show put on by the drama club and concert choir.

Other acts in the variety show included a medley from the "Wizard of Oz," an appearance from "Samarai Tailor," various "commercials," and a medley of songs by the Beach Boys, performed by the LHS choir. Patrick Berry, Andy John, and Nancy Lowery served as masters and mistress of ceremonies for the show.

Due to the success of "Act I, Scene 3," the choir produced "Act I, Scene 4," another variety show later in the year. This show included many different styles of music ranging from country to rock and roll, and from folk songs to broadway hits. Special appearances were made by "Scott" and "Jolinda" in "Disco Break." George Foresman served as master of ceremonies for the evening. The choir performed a salute to George M. Cohan and after a medley of songs from "Grease," the curtain went down.

Juniors sponsor "Santa's Place"

Winter's dreary atmosphere did nothing to dampen the spirits at LHS, as students and faculty greeted the season with the rainbow of interests characteristic of them. As the art club got the winter months going by selling printed calendars to the school and the community, juniors brought "Santa's Place" to the LHS gym on the night of the Christmas Dance. In an attempt to catch up on the news, Coach Jeff Stickley reads The Roanoke Times and World News between classes.

Despite the fun, everyone was glad to see Christmas vacation; in case of boredom, the basketball tournament and other winter sports helped to alleviate the post-Christmas blues. The faculty was also busy; appointed by Mr. Andes, an energy committee consisting of Mr. Bond, Mr. Engleman, Mr. Sayblack, Ms. Simons and Ms. Walker was working on how to determine how energies, both human and physical, could be conserved or better used within the school.

After Christmas vacation, the honor committee held an assembly before the whole student body to demonstrate that the committee is a vital part of the school. Commonwealth Attorney John Read was the special guest speaker. Following

Carnations, D.C., and The Big Apple

Spring is a time of new beginnings — at LHS it is the beginning of spring sports, hot days, and fewer clothes. Also, for seniors, it is the beginning of the end — the end of a fine climb to success.

As usual, the AFS carnation sale began the spring season as everyone ran to buy carnations for those "special" friends. Other activities were plentiful and showed the rainbow of interests at LHS. For instance, all of those who experienced the band trip to New York can describe it as unique since about half of the members caught a virus and were incredibly sick.

The seniors met on the windy morning of April 3 at 4:30 a.m. to take the annual trip to Washington, D.C. and in early May, the Art Club also made a trip to D.C. to tour some museums, attend a play, and just enjoy themselves.

Juniors took SAT's; seniors enjoyed themselves at Shenandoah Acres and everyone jumped into their tuxes and gowns to live it up at the prom.

Cheerleaders were chosen, SCA officers were elected, awards assemblies and banquets were held and everyone received the sad news that Principal Dr. Andes was resigning to assume a new position in Louisa County. Seniors got out of school one day early to practice for graduation and senior night. Graduation was the final activity of the season and with this final celebration everyone saw promises of a great summer to follow one of the best springs ever.

At a later date it was announced that Nancy Lowery would be in charge of elections.

Before the school year began, SCA activities were being planned through summer meetings with Mr. Andes and Ms. Ramsey. The first responsibility was to elect class officers and first period SCA representatives. Each class was called to elect its officers in the gym. First period representative elections were done in each first period home-room class.

Homecoming activities were next on the list of SCA responsibilities to be carried out. Each class elected its homecoming representatives. Classes worked diligently on their floats, while Homecoming Queen candidates were announced and students waited in anticipation for the queen to be announced.

After Homecoming, SCA was able to concentrate on two major concerns — school spirit and school appearance. To combat sagging school spirit, pep rallies and sochops were held. High school night at a W&L basketball game proved LHS spirit was improving with forty percent student attendance, which easily gave LHS the winning prize. Poor school appearance was improved by appropriating money to enclose the cafeteria bulletin board with plexiglass. The landscaping project, which included the reseeding of grass, will continue next year with the placement of trees and shrubs in unsightly areas.

cruises to tropical island

Being a junior means one thing, PROM. Each year for months and months the junior class works on the extravaganza that is considered by many the social event of the year.

After countless meetings and planning sessions the theme for the Prom was decided. The plan was to transform the gym into a tropical island which could be reached only by the luxury liner, S.S. Lexington. The theme could be "A Cruise to Remember."

The awesome task of transformation began when yards and yards of paper to be used as murals were rolled out in the halls. Juniors painted these while more were drawn. Many students who arrived at school early in the morning got a peak at the murals left to dry overnight until frantic juniors were able to roll them up and whisk them away.

Invitations were addressed and sent to seniors and faculty as D-Day came closer and closer. A special trip was made to Charlottesville to pick up 400 leis, which were given to each passenger departing the S.S. Lexington. Sponsors (Mr. Bourdrez, Ms. Ramsey, Mr. Edwards, and Ms. Sauder) and committee chairmen scurried about making last minute arrangements as the decorating continued. Some juniors debated whether it would be feasible to run a shuttle bus to and from Sherwin Williams as countless gallons of paint were used.

Friday, May 16, the eve of the Prom, arrived and seniors were off frolicking at Shenandoah Acres while juniors slaved all day in the gym. Underclassmen crowded around the gym doors to catch a Saturday saw weary juniors donning tuxedos and long dresses as seniors contemplated what was in store for them from the juniors. But after their arrival, they discovered they had nothing to fear.

They strolled up the gang plank and into the ship's lobby, where they received their leis. Then it was a quick promenade down the stateroom-lined hall and off into Hawaii. A tropical jungle grew along one wall, and an umbrella-strewn beach sprawled across the other. Portholes from the S.S. Lexington shone from the back wall of the gym. Under a star canopied ceiling they danced the night away to the sights and sounds of "Casper." But the big question of the night was "would the volcano in the middle of the floor erupt?"

At 11:30 the prom was over and for many seniors it was "A Cruise to Remember."

On Friday May 30, band members and band director, Mr. Sayblack gathered in the red and white gymnasium for what would be Mr. Sayblack's last LHS band banquet. After a delicious covered dish meal, several band students were recognized with awards and the 1981 officers were announced.

The fourteen senior musicians were presented with plaques which listed some of their musical accomplishments. In turn, the seniors presented Mr. Sayblack with a set of Cross pens; the band gave him money totalling over one-hundred and twenty dollars and the Band Boosters presented him with a check for fifty dollars. Mr. Sayblack will be leaving to pursue a career in theology.

LHS-England exchange started

A covered dish supper marked the beginning of the Lexington-Kittatiny Regional Band Exchange and some new friendships. Kittatiny's Band toured Charlottesville, the Blue Ridge Parkway, and Rockbridge County during their stay here; LHS band members organized a dance and a concert to illustrate their "Southern hospitality."

In turn, our band traveled to Kittaniny, New Jersey where they joined their new friends. A trip to New York City included a tour of the U.N. Building and the World Trade Center, a visit to Radio City Music Hall, and shopping at Bloomingdales and Saks Fifth Avenue. A second visit consisted of a boat ride around Manhattan Island on the Hudson and a cold wet rain. After a concert, a mysterious virus struck the LHS' band which put a damper on Kittatiny's attempt at ''Northern hospitality."

An exchange between England and America was started by Mrs. Peggy Hays this year which will hopefully continue for many years to come. This year seven English students came to Lexington for three weeks. They were literally part of the family in their different host households. Many excursions were made as a group or with their individual host families, in which they learned how to disco, devour pizza or find the best buys in Roanoke. Many also saw Williamsburg and Busch Gardens. When the goodbyes came, it was like saying goodbye to a sister or brother for many of LHS host students; red and teary eyes were a valid testimony.

From these exchanges were gained knowledge, long distance loves, t-shirts, pen-pals, but most of all, some good memories.

Juniors fall to senior foes

The annual Junior-Senior Powderpuff Football game got underway this year on a cold, grey November 29. Junior coaches Lee Glenn, Mark Rogers, Patrick Berry, and John Baker sent out their team under quarterback Mary Gearing; senior coaches Carlton Peebles, Bucky Miller, and Dana Long put their faith in senior quarterback Macy Brittigan.

The junior quarterback was injured in the first minutes of the game, and was replaced by Ginny Carter. Two hours of action ensued, in which senior ball carriers Judy Pleasants, Macy Brittigan, and Susan Smith ran in three touchdowns. The sole junior touchdown was made on a long charge by Sara Peebles.

The final score: Seniors 18, Juniors 6. The seniors were off for their victory celebration, amid junior cries of "We'll get'em next year!"

In this succession of sequence shots, junior running back Lisa Bane is gradually overcome by senior Cindy Weeks.

Enthusiastically cheering their team on are charming junior cheerleaders Mike Bowsher, Patrick Berry, Pete Sisson, and Butch Williams.

Honors begin for underclassmen

A formal dinner marked the end of the yearly honors program for nine seniors. All of the nine students graduated with honors, meaning they met the requirement of getting at least a 'B' on all except one of the five different units.

Beginning the course during the summer, each student was required to read How to Read a Book before tackling all the required literature during their senior year.

In the mathematics unit, the students focused on the history and evolution of mathematics. They prepared a paper and saw a ballet performed by the Connecticut Dance Company for the modern dance unit. Completion of the music unit required each student to analyze two major works of a composer of their choice. For drama, Ms. Emerson required the students to attend a number of plays in addition to completing a project; for example, one student constructed a mini-theatre. Finally, the students had to write a computer program in order to gain credit in the computer programming Besides these projects and classes, the students attended plays at the Troubador Theatre, the Boiler Room Theatre, the University of Virginia Theatre and the Virginia Museum and were treated to a make-up demonstration at W&L's Troubador Theatre.

The honors students also participated in several philosophy sessions during the course of the year. Complying with tradition, the four male students prepared the end-of-the-year dinner at the home of Mark Morgan, in return, the female students washed the dishes.

For the first time, honors programs were also offered to underclassmen. An eighth and ninth grade Gifted and Talented group participated in an art unit taught by Mrs. Pamela Tinsley. The all-girl organization studied natural-dying techniques, spinning, and weaving. To conclude their program, they had an afternoon tea for teachers where they displayed their final weavings.

A second Gifted and Talented group consisted of sophomores and juniors. The theme for their program, which included canoeing, wildflowers, archeology, birdwatching, and bee-keeping, was "The Great Outdoors". Participating students were Stanley Lewis, Ann Fritchman, Monica Mears, Kathy Wilson, and Rebecca Whitney.

An original by Stanley Lewis, the honors dinner menu added a final touch to the meal.

Seniors journey to nation's capitol

At around 3:00 a.m. on the morning of April 3, lights flashed on and off in about 150 student households throughout Lexington and Rockbridge County. Why? It was the morning of the annual senior trip and every participating senior, chaperones Mrs. Hays, Mr. Andes, Mr. Bond, Miss Aldridge, Mr. Sayblack, and Mr. Wood, and the seven English Exchange students were to be on one of the three chartered buses by 4:15 — Mrs. Hays' orders!

By 9:00, the buses, which only four hours earlier had left a pitted school parking lot, arrived at the Bureau of Printing and Engraving in Washington, D. C., where amazed students saw how the bills in their purses and pockets had been printed. From there, the now hungry mob was taken to the Holloway House Cafeteria where breakfasts ranged from sweetrolls and milk to hotcakes and sausage!

A tour of our nations capitol followed breakfast. Despite the disappointing and unexpected absence of the Honorable Caldwell Butler, students still managed to smile as the traditional senior picture was snapped on the Congress steps. A short tour of the Supreme Court Building followed the picture taking.

With brown bag lunches in hand, students were happy to unload on the mall for lunch and a few free hours. While many mustered enough energy to trail off to the Smithsonian's many museums, others chose to relax in the sun and feed their left over lunches to the mall's permanent sea gulls.

At the appointed hour, students once again boarded buses and headed for the Lincoln and Jefferson Memorials for quick tours. The solemn changing of the guard at Arlington National Cemetery was an appropriate ending for a hectic but enjoyable day.

Before leaving D. C., the group stopped at Seven Corners for dinner and shopping. At 12:30, three chartered buses arrived back in the school's familiar pitted parking lot.

The Capitol is a magestic background for tourists and members of the senior class.

The view of Washington from the bus window seems to have captured the interest of Leslie Harris and Foster Friedman.

Showing that the senior trip can be exhausing, Mr. David Andes takes a nap on the bus.

Taking a break from the sightseeing, John Hunter and Pam Cox discuss the senior event.

While Mollie Rorrer and Pam Cox converse, Sharon Swisher is oblivious to it all.

After having visited the Bureau of Engraving and Printing these seniors board the bus for the next stop.

While seniors are off splashing in the lake, chefs Papa Joe Sayblack and Mary Lou Williams slave over the hot flames.

Hungrily eyeing salads and desserts, Terri Carter and Bridgette Craney wait in line at the food table.

Displaying newly purchased sunglasses, Trena Craney, Vera Merchant, and Darlene Payne smile for the photographer.

With hamburgers 'hot off the grill,' Foster Friedman, Milton Snider, and Donna Cooper add the toppings.

Just out of the water, Ann Floyd and Kelly Fallon chat with fellow seniors.

Despite the shortage of gasoline and the school board's threat that there could be no senior picnic, senior sponsor Mr. Kihm managed to convince the authorities to keep the annual tradition. Thus, wearing sunglasses, swimsuits, and shorts, members of the Class of 1980 and their chaperones, Miss Aldridge, Mrs. Hays, Mr. Kihm, Mr. Sayblack, and Mrs. Williams boarded three buses on May 15 to carry out the fun-filled day at the popular Shenandoah Acres

Various activities kept the class busy throughout the day. An exciting cable ride, a merry-go-round in the water, volleyball, horsebackriding, pinball, sunning, and eating were among the days' activities. Mr. Sayblack and Mrs. Williams displayed their gourmet skills by turning out over four hundred hamburgers to hungry seniors.

Meanwhile, with the seniors forty miles away, juniors were able to keep their Hawaiian paradise a secret behind locked gym doors.

Blondie, tears, and laughter

Concentrating on the speaker, community leaders and school leaders wait their turns to recognize and award deserving seniors.

With only twenty-four hours to go before receiving their diplomas, members of the Class of 1980 gathered with family and friends to share in an evening of both seriousness and fun. Class Night 1980, the conclusion of a great year, began as it always does with the presentation of awards and scholarships given by community clubs and organizations and by the teachers.

After all awards had been presented to deserving seniors the more humorous side of the evening, done by the seniors, began. Respectively, Ellen Floyd, Maggie Entsminger, and Cyndi Weeks sang songs they had selected themselves. Mistresses of Ceremony, Dee Meade and Cyndi Weeks introduced "teacher superlatives," selected and portrayed by members of the class.

Mad and amazed seniors rushed to the stage in an attempt to touch punk rock star Blondie, alias Janet Kirkley. Donned in scarlet tights and a brown mini dress and complete with appropriately dressed band members, Janet sang and danced to "Call Me."

Moving once again to seriousness, everyone viewed a slide show entitled "Looking Back" and compiled and presented by senior Lloyd Glenn. The evening ended with refreshments for everyone in the cafeteria.

165 march to "Pomp and Circumstance"

With eyes focused on the podium, Jeff Knudson and Bill Mapp attentatively listen to the speaker.

Graduation — a time of happiness and a time of sadness, a time of togetherness and a time of individualism. It brings a class together for the last time and it takes a class apart for the first time.

As 165 seniors marched onto the graduation field on June 7 to the strands of "Pomp and Circumstance," many different ideas raced through their minds. Some thought of how sad it all was, some thought of how nervous they were, and others couldn't stop thinking of gifts, all-night parties and trips to the beach; but behind all these different thoughts was basically the same thought — of how this single night signified the end of a long hard struggle to the top. It had been years of learning, thinking and working, but mostly of growing and developing into a mature and able adult.

About to receive their diplomas, Norma Aldridge, Greg Wilkerson, Megan Agnor, E.R. Smith, Roger Simmons, and Vera Merchant anxiously wait.

Applauding the individual presentations of diplomas, Jerry Beard, Lisa Shepherd, Bucky Miller, and Pam Cox congratulate their friends.

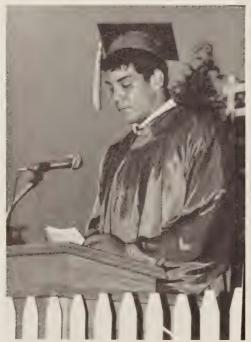

Expressing a mixture of emotions, seniors find themselves surrounded by tears and flying caps.

Reflecting upon her own high school friendships, salutatorian, Ann Floyd, speaks about "Positive Relationships."

Having recognized the rainbow of interests, senior class president, Carlton Peebles, talks about "Unity through Diversity."

Valedictorian, Janet Kirkley, addresses the class on "The Value of Tradition."

Caps and tassels hurled in air

After principal David Andes gave the opening remarks, Reverend David Sprunt directed a message to the class. Class President Carlton Peebles then gave his speech entitled "Unity Through Diversity" after which Salutatorian Ann Floyd spoke of "Positive Relationships" following Valedictorian Janet Kirkley's speech

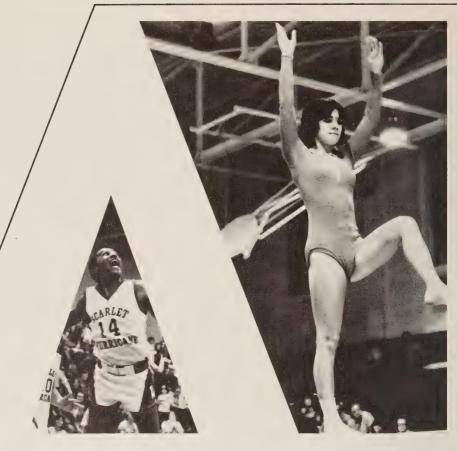

"The Value of Tradition." Mr. Andes and Mr. Stark presented diplomas to the graduates. Reverend Hinkle gave the benediction.

Following Mr. Andes announcements, class members threw their caps into the air, an act signifying their joy at no longer being seniors but graduates of LHS. The rainbow of interests that had made them individuals throughout the year had brought the class together one last time and had taken them apart for the first time.

The result of long years of hard work, Gary Higgins receives his diploma from Mr. Andes.

SPORTS

"Hey, Doug! Want to go down to the courts and shoot some hoops?"

"Sorry, I don't have time. By the time I get out of wrestling practice, it will be late; then I have to wait for my sister to get out of gymnastics. Anyway, I'll be so tired after practice that I won't want to play any basketball! Wrestling takes a lot of time."

"I know. I don't see how you have time to do anything except wrestle."

"Well, it does take a lot of time and it puts a strain on you emotionally and physically, but it's worth it. When you get out there and pin your opponent, it makes you feel great!"

"Maybe so, but I happen to enjoy coming home after school once in a while instead of staying here all the time. I get enough of this place just by coming to school every day."

"You see! That's the difference between you and me. I like organized sports — you don't. I like competition — the thrill of victory, the agony of defeat."

"Especially the agony of defeat for you! No, I'm just kidding. Actually, I'm seriously thinking about running on the boy's outdoor track team; then I'll know what it's like to sacrifice all my time for a sport that I like. By the way, how are your grades since you spend so much time in sports?"

"Well, I have to keep a certain average or I'm kicked off the team. I just have to balance my time between sports and academics."

"Sounds good to me! For now, I'm off to play some basketball."

"Well, I'm off to wrestling practice. See ya later!"

"Yea, later!"

New football coach John Mack began work as usual for the football team in early August. By working out in the weight room, the players had prepared themselves for the long and sweaty practices that had to be endured.

Under team captain Carlton Peebles, the team plunged ahead into the first football game and proved that it was ready for the season ahead. The team lost by a narrow margin of two points to William Byrd, one of the toughest opponents

Bad weather forces cancellations

In his first year of coaching at LHS, Ralph Moore advises the players of good strategy on the football field.

Though their record may not reflect it, the JV football team, which consisted primarily of ninth graders, had an excellent season. Except for a broken wrist suffered by Jack Gearing in a pre-game warm-up with Fort Defiance, the team experienced few injuries. Bad weather was more detrimental to the team than injuries as it resulted in the cancellation of three out of only four home games.

"The team worked hard and well together," commented head Coach Lewis Straub. Assisting Coach Straub for the first year was Ralph Moore, who worked especially with the defensive lines. Those members who will be returning to the team next year are looking forward to the regulations of a new district where freshmen and sophomores will once again be able to play together in games.

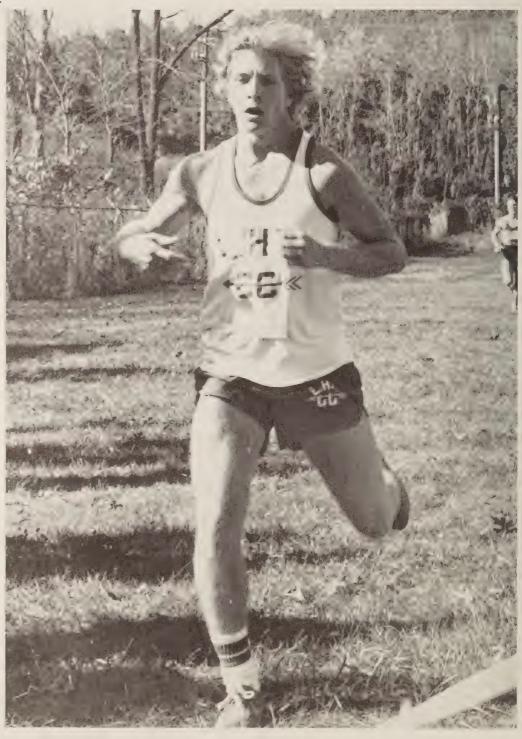

Team places third in district

The 1979-80 Cross Country Team had a 19-17-1 overall regular season record, an excellent outcome for the extremely tough competition of the Valley District. The team placed third in the district and seventh in regionals to become the second best team in Harrier history. Under the guidance of coach Charles Lauck, the team began practice in early August running twice a day. Co-captain lettermen E. R. Smith and David Jarrard and returning lettermen Foster Friedman and Butch Williams were complemented by excellent running from newcomers Charles Lauck, Skipper Staton, and Clark Waring. Additional running support was received from John Adams, John Hamrick, Ernest Edgar, Tom Imeson, and Brad Jarvis. The course was created around the school so that for the first time more LHS students could enjoy the exciting action.

This year Lexington also fielded a Girls' Cross Country team. The team was led by senior captain Mariella Colvin. Others on the team included Missy Lamont, Sarah Cook, Julie Blankenship, Suzy Nay and AFS exchange student Ria Van Damme. The girls' team had a 3-10 season record and were fifth in their district meet.

Easily beating two district competitors, senior runner E.R. Smith crosses the finish line.

After a good run, Foster Friedman checks on his time and place.

Lady Hurricanes surpass first round of district tournament

For the first time since the girls' basketball team was organized at LHS, the Lady Hurricane finally surpassed the first round in the District Tournament. At the beginning of the season Lexington was picked to be in last place, but when the season ended Lexington was tied for third place in the District.

The Lady Hurricane had a very rough season this year, but what kept them together was their experience. This year's team was composed of eight returning lettermen, three newcomers up from Junior Varsity, and one transfer, all under a new coach, Ms. Barbara Stenzel, a graduate of the University of Virginia. When Coach Stenzel was asked about the climax of her first year coaching she said, "I was very pleased with the girls' effort and especially in the tournament. I was looking forward to a .500 season, but injuries hurt us."

This year's team was led by the two senior co-captains, Judy Pleasants and Trena Craney. For Ms. Stenzel's first year at a head coaching position, she had a very successful season. Her team ended up with a 9-13 record, including a win in the first round of the District Tournament. The Lady Hurricane are very proud of this successful year. The only thing that will hurt them next year will be the loss of their five seniors — Bridgette Craney, Trena Craney, Judy Pleasants, Lorna Smith, and Susan Smith. Trena Craney was named to the Valley District second team; Trena was second in rebounds and sixth in scoring in the Valley District.

Dedication, experience aid team

Coached by June Mays, the J.V. Basketball team, consisting of three eighth graders, four freshmen, and four sophomores, got off to a good start by winning the first game of the season against Rockbridge High School.

The five players returning from last year's team furnished the experience needed to get the girls going. The players' outside shooting ability and their height enabled the team to match up to most competitors.

Coach Mays felt that the players' enthusiasm and participation in the game was involved over last year. The players' dedication helped to improve last year's record.

Parents' night, held on the night of the last game, brought the season to a close. Each player was announced and the players presented carnations to their parents.

Stumpff places second in state

While the referee signals two points, Tri-Captain Andy John goes on to pin his opponent in the W&L Invitational.

Largely due to the fine coaching of Coach John Mack, the 79-80 wrestling team was the best ever finishing the regular season with a fine 8-2-1 record. Included in the eight wins was a victory over Turner Ashby, the first in the history of LHS wrestling, and a decisive 37-19 win over arch-rival Parry McCluer. The team also finished second in the Washington and Lee Christmas Tournament with Timmy Donald winning an individual title.

Tri-Captain Bobby Lawrence was the Valley District champion at 119 pounds as the team took third place, just 1.5 points behind second place Turner Ashby. The team took more wrestlers, eight, to the regional competition than any other district team. Tri-Captain Roger Stumpff was the regional champion at 145 pounds as the team placed seventh out of twenty-two teams.

Five wrestlers, Marvin Smith, Timmy Donald, Carlton Peebles, Roger Stumpff, and Tri-Captain Andy John advanced on to the state tournament which was held at Bassett High School. Stumpff placed second in the state and John fourth as the team placed thirteenth out of fifty-five.

Gymnasts finish season undefeated

In only its third season at LHS, the girls' gymnastics team finished an undefeated season, beating Harrisonburg, the biggest competitor, by a narrow but significant margin.

The team, consisting of seven juniors, two freshmen, one sophomore, and one senior, came into the season with high hopes of beating all the competitors and walking away with the Valley District title. As they practiced long and diligently to meet their goal, their work finally paid off.

The team became district champs by beating Harrisonburg by .05 points and the girls did indeed walk away with the Valley District trophy. Co-captains Julie Kirgis and Angie Smith, Cindy Blankenship, Cindy Huffman, and Penny Price advanced to regionals; although they placed well, they failed to qualify for the state competition.

Of her first year of coaching the gymnastics team, Ms. June Mays commented, "I really enjoyed working with the girls. They were dedicated to the team and to each other and they really deserved the Valley District title."

Last Year of Indoor Track

Although the Indoor Track team was a young squad with only two seniors participating in the sport, each member worked hard to complete a very successful season. Because the Valley District, consisting of seven schools, divided into two groups to relieve the pressure of competition, the few underclassmen on the team had a chance to further develop and mature in their ability. Despite the teams' success, the Virginia High School League regulations make it so that there will no longer be any indoor track for this division - because of the lack of funds for support of the sport.

The team finished fourth in the District and sixth out of thirteen teams competing in the Regionals. The following girls placed in district competition: Cynthia Claytor, Sarah Cook, Faquica Dunn, Missy Lamont, Denise Mull, Nancy Steeves and Frances Youngblood. Six finalists from District Boys' Competition advanced to Regionals. They were Bill Coleman, Ricky Lewis, Clifford Payne, Skipper Staton, Bowman Ware, Clark Waring, and Butch Williams. The highest point receiving member was Pete Sisson; Bill Coleman, Ricky Lewis, Pete Sisson, Bowman Ware, and Clark Waring qualified for state competition. Sisson placed sixth in the five hundred meter.

Making a successful attempt over the high bar, Ronnie Stevens completes an impressive clearing at the Virginia Military Institute fieldhouse.

On his way to overtaking the forerunner, Clark Waring continues to strive as Butch Williams races to the front.

Inches from the finish line, Denise Mull grits her teeth as she becomes the happy winner in her event.

The Scarlet Hurricane Basketball team returned seven lettermen from the previous year's young team, looking for their first winning season in a number of years. The team got off to a great start by winning two non-district games, including a win over Covington, whom Lexington had not beaten since 1970. The 'Big Red' had a 6-4 record at the halfway mark of the season.

In the Christmas Tournament Parry McCluer edged Lexington in the first round, but Lexington retaliated against Rockbridge the next night to finish third in the tournament. By the middle of the season, there was little total team spirit, which was unfortunate for a team with the potential to finish high in the district rankings. However, as the season progressed toward the final games, the 'Big Red' began to play together as a team as they nearly upset league leaders Harrisonburg and Western Albemarle. They finished the regular season with a 59-57 win over R.E. Lee, whom they had not beaten since 1969. They wound up fifth out of seven Valley District teams, with a 11-10 record. LHS ended their overall season with a loss to R.E. Lee in the first round of the Valley District Tournament. During the season LHS lost four players, including starting forward Mark Morgan who was injured early in the season.

Guard Lenny Hall, a junior, had an outstanding season as he led the team with a 14.2 scoring average while being named to the all-county and Christmas all-tournament teams. Hall was also named to the All-Valley District second team. Corey Poindexter led the team with 9.2 rebounds per game and was second in scoring with a 10.4 average.

Coach John Whitesell believed his team should have finished with at least a 14-7 record; he was somewhat disappointed with the teams' overall play.

Lacrosse Club completes fourth consecutive winning season

Under the direction of new head coach Mark Derbyshire and assistant coaches Angus Finney and Glenn Keller, the Lexington Lacrosse Club finished another successful season with a winning record of 6-3. The LLC, which has played competitive high school lacrosse since 1976, recorded its fourth consecutive winning season. The Club, supported by players' parents and W&L, is not yet a school funded sport.

LLC opened its season with a tough loss to Western Albemarle, 8-7, but then rallied to crush North Cross, 11-4. After two convincing victories in Maryland, the team suffered a letdown by losing two close, hard fought games with Roanoke Catholic and Blue Ridge. The Club began playing as a team unit when they revenged their earlier defeat to Roanoke Catholic. Lexington ended their season with two convincing wins.

LLC thus ended the season with three straight wins to raise its overall record to 6-3, and its record over five seasons now stands at 28-7. Each of the clubs three losses were by one goal, with the Blue Ridge defeat coming in sudden-death overtime. Lexington's scoring for the season was led by the potent attack trio of co-captain Andy John (19 goals, 18 assists), Mark Morgan (14 goals, 10 assists), and Tommy Imeson (15 goals, 3 assists). Midfielders Rob McHen (11 goals, 2 assists), and cocaptain Eddie McCall (7 goals, 4 assists) contributed to the scoring but also played superb defense as did midfielders David Jarrard, Eric Fitch, and Matt Kozak. Throughout the year the consistent defense of Chris John, John Hunter, and Trev Kinder, and the outstanding play of our rookie goalies Joe Sprott and George Huger continually kept the opponents scores low.

Next year will be a rebuilding one, because 12 seniors are graduating. However, with more student participation the team could record its fifth consecutive winning season.

Two cyclists, Suzy Nay and Pam Cox, hurry across the W&L bridge to watch the LLC game already in progress.

Team improves season record

As junior Mark Rogers scores, Mark Smith has his eye on the action in the outfield.

While donning new uniforms, the his fourth time and was the recipient Scarlet Hurricane baseball team used improved pitching and more balanced hitting to have one of its best seasons in recent years. The pitching staff was led by sophomore Jeff Smiley whose 6-3 record and .375 batting average earned him recognition as Most Valuable Player. Also hitting over .300 were sophomores Gary Blackwell (.333), Jeff Ax (.326) and senior E.R. Smith (.313).

Co-captain E.R. Smith lettered for of the Glenn Daughtry award. Ax also was the teams top fielder, making only two errors in 73 chances. John Hamric led the team with 16 RBI's including his grand slam homerun which capped a memorable comeback against Broadway in the final game of the season.

The prospects for next year are bright in that only one senior, E.R. Smith, will graduate.

Mutispaugh places fifth in state

The 1980 golf team ended up with an even 12-12 record for the year. The team was led by co-captain junior Alan Mutispaugh and sophomore Ward Huffman. The rest of the team was rounded out by Scott Goff, Tommy Lenny, Charles Kostelni, and John Baker. In districts, which were held at home, the team did not do as well as expected, but Alan placed fifth in the State tournament, which was decided in a one hole play-off.

The team is expected to do well next year when we move to the Blue Ridge District. Coach Earl Edwards feels that the team should be promising with this year's top six golfers returning next year.

Team places fourth in B.V. relays

In a classic position, senior Ed Chaconas poses for photographer David Sprunt.

Although the record shows that LHS only won two track meets, it fails to show that it was still a good season for the team.

The teams' losses were due mostly to the lack of depth. In addition, turnouts at the meets were low, with usually no more than 20 people attending to cheer the team to victory. Nevertheless, members took pride in their team and worked hard to make it a successful year.

The highlight of the season was winning fourth place at the Buena Vista Relays, in which seventeen teams participated. Several school records were set during the year. Ricky Lewis set a record of 41.6 in the 30 meter hurdles at the Harrisonburg meet. Skip Staton set a record of 4.29.8 in the 1600 meter run at the Regionals meet and a record of 9.59.2 in the 3200 meter run at the District meet. Many team members worked hard but only Skip Staton went to the State meet. Coach Brown had this to say of the team, "It was a rebuilding year, and we only lose three seniors. Next year, we look forward to a good season in the Blue Ridge District.'

Two LHS runners in front, Charles Lauck and Ed Chaconas, battle for the lead.

On the verge of exhaustion, junior John Adams pushes towards the finish line.

Poindexter advances to state competition

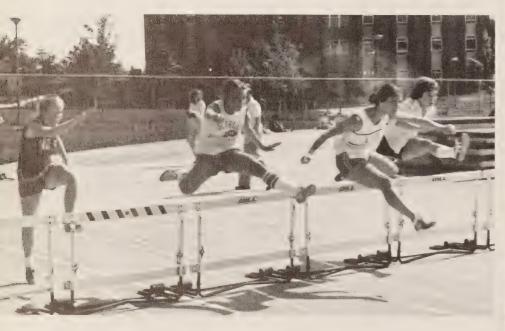

The 1980 Girls' Track team, under the direction of Coach June Mays and Assistant Coach Liz Ramsey, started out with a very large and capable team. Due to bad weather conditions, some of the track meets were postponed and rescheduled at later dates, which extended the regular season.

There were three people who advanced to Regionals: Mariella Colvin, Ellen Lenny, and Kim Poindexter; Poindexter also advanced to state competition. Several school records were broken and new ones were set in new metric conversions. The team finished with an overall season record of 4-5. The team's major downfall was not due to lack of enthusiasm or capability, but due to a shortage of team uniforms.

Coach Mays and Coach Ramsey have high hopes for their young team in the Blue Ridge District.

Swisher wins Golden Eagle award

The cheerleaders started the year early as they practiced all summer and attended camp at Lynchburg College. While there, the varsity girls won a second place ribbon for a skit in which they performed and Sharon Swisher won a trophy for the best allaround Golden Eagle Cheerleader. Both squads received superior ribbons.

The varsity squad, sponsored by Sandy Aldridge, and led by cocaptains Sharon Swisher and Beth Ripley, consisted of four seniors, two juniors, and two sophomores. The junior varsity squad, sponsored by Sally Simons, and led by co-captains Debbie Claytor and Teresa Zybko, consisted of six freshmen and one sophomore. Both squads cheered for girls' and boys' basketball and for boys' football. As a trial run, they also attended the home wrestling and gymnastics meets.

The cheerleaders sold candy to earn money in order to buy new uniforms and held pep rallies for every athletic event. They also helped to sell tickets with the lettermen to get money for the summer sports banquet.

The Varsity girls, joined by Heather Mack, rally the crowd to its feet as they cheer at the Homecoming football game against R.E. Lee.

ACADEMICS

"It takes me three years to do all these dumb math problems. We have to do about fifty problems every night."

"You shouldn't complain. The class was an elective. You didn't have to take it. I can complain about the English because I had to take this class, but you have to admit, there's nothing like reading Beowulf or The Red Badge of Courage."

"Or Machiavelli's The Prince or John F. Kennedy's Profiles in Courage."

"Oh, that's nothing. I've had to do three research papers in the same class for one semester."

"So what? I put off writing papers in Advanced Composition class until the last day of the semester and I had to write ten papers in one night."

"That's your fault, but I can see how you could get in that situation. I stayed up until three o'clock one morning translating my French and Latin.

"You take both French and Latin — are you crazy?"

"Well, what about you — Physics, Chemistry, and Calculus?"

"They aren't so bad?"

"Neither is French and Latin. You just have to put some work into it."

"I guess all school work isn't bad — just most of it."

"Yea, and all these math problems are the bad part!"

Art department sells five-hundred calendars

A spectrum of activities in the fine arts department allowed students to pursue their interests and further develop their individual talents. For the second year in a row, students greeted a new teacher, Mrs. Pamela Tinsley, in the art department.

The art club elected to once again sell calendars but chose not to silkscreen their own; instead, James Allen Printing Co. of Buena Vista printed 1980 calendars from thirteen art club members' pen and ink drawings of historic sites in Lexington.

Opting to sway from silkscreening proved beneficial as the black and white calendars sold better than ever. Profit from the sale of five hundred calendars in three editions plus the sale of individual calendar drawings permitted the art club to travel to Richmond for the Virginia Museum's special "Emergency and Progression" exhibit of modern artists' work as well as to venture to Washington D.C. for an overnight trip.

In D.C., the group toured the National Gallery and the Hirschorn Museum, saw "Chorus Line" at the National Theatre and shopped at White Flint Shopping Mall where they dined at the Eatery.

For the first time, the art department had shows in conjunction with the band's Christmas Concert and Spring Concert. A week long exhibit of all area high school artist's work hung at Pobai's Place in early March.

Three days before school actually began, the band met at the Kenney's farm to learn the marching formations and songs to the halftime shows of football games. With their performance down and the addition of new uniforms, halftime shows were at a peak.

The jazz band performed at the Rockbridge Community Festival and the marching band participated in the Buena Vista Labor Day Parade and in the mock convention parade, which they headed.

At the annual band festival, the concert band played grade VI music, the most difficult, and received a rating of II. Eleven motivated band members traveled to Winchester, Virginia where they participated in the Shenandoah band clinic at the Shenandoah College and Conservatory of Music.

Once again, LHS occupied a majority of the All-County Band seats with forty-two participating students. Fifteen of the forty-two traveled to All-Regional Band and two members, Nancy Lowery and Pam Cox, went on to try out for All-State Band.

The collection of newspapers and the sale of apples and ornaments enabled the band to travel to Kittatinny, New Jersey in an exchange program with a high school there.

Concentrating on his paper, second-year art student Wesley Floyd adds the final touch to his drawing. The choir started off with a variety show in November where it performed such numbers as "The Beach Boys Medley" and "People Need Love." Soon after the hectiveness of this performance dwindled, the Christmas concert, held in conjunction with the band concert, popped up.

In April, the choir performed a second variety show. Such numbers as "Grease" and "Dancing with George M." a patriotic medley were performed. The day after this very successful show, the choir was on the move again; this time it was to James Madison University in Harrisonburg where it participated in the Mid-Atlantic Jazz and Show Choir Festival. The Choir received third place honors in the Show Choir category.

As the year wound down the Choir sang at the last VMI chapel service and many members participated in the Talent Show put on by the Lexington Volunteer Fire Department. Mr. Rector Engleman's woodwork and metal work students spent many hours working on required individual projects. Coffee tables, cedar chests, and grandfather clocks were among the finished products.

A big switch took place in the lower end of the main hall this year. In the Home Economics department, Mrs. Dunlap and Mrs. Chambers switched classes so that each taught what the other had traditionally taught. Mrs. Dunlap took over the food section of Home Ec I and Mrs. Chambers took charge of the clothing section.

The clothing section focused on making vests, shirts, and skirts. Rachel Harris, an English exchange student, joined the home ec department during her three week stay in Lexington and completed a wraparound skirt to take back to England.

Lecturing in sales management, Mr. Sonny Jacque speaks to consumer management students as Mandy Hamilton and Effie Wilhelm assist.

The clothing section also included crafts such as crewel, hatchhook, macrame, and needlepoint.

All Home Ec II classes studied consumer management and nutrition while Home Ec III classes studied food service and child development. While studying child development, the Home EC III class held a party for the Sellers Street Nursery School. The food service class catered weddings, banquets, and open houses.

Students study grammar, literature, writing

English students enjoyed combined courses of literature and grammar, the teachers alternated from one subject to the other throughout the school year. Depending on the grade level of the students, they studied either American or English literature.

Returning to LHS form her exchange year in Germany, Ms. Yvonne Emerson resumed her battle against poor writing habits among her senior advanced composition students; two words, "and" and "is" became her major foes throughout the year. Ms. Emerson also sponsored the LHS forensics club.

No English student managed to complete the year without writing at least one paper, even if it was only a book report. However, several students were required to do major research papers or expository papers before the school year ended. Some of the teachers tried to teach their students the different types of writing, for example by having them prepare satires or essays. And senior English students learned how to write a critical analysis with proper protocol.

Two new teachers joined the Foreign Languages department at LHS this year: Ms. Alice Ford, who taught Latin, and Mr. Alex Bourdrez, who taught French. Ms. Yvonne Emerson returned from her exchange trip with Rainer Huncke to take her place once again teaching German.

Several activities, which have become traditions in the department, continued this year. The Latin classes held their annual Latin Banquet, at which the students enjoy a typical Roman meal served to them by typical Roman slaves. The annual Foreign Language Field Day was held; students of the different languages participated in international sports and events. Once again, the foreign language students gathered together near Christmas time to sing carols in their respective languages. The German classes also enjoyed German dinners near the end of school.

Guidance counselor Edward Kihm visited the German classes and shared with them his experiences and adventures in Germany.

Student participation key to learning

The Social Studies department succeeded this year in gaining the interest and participation of the student body by encouraging students to learn and put their knowledge to use through extra-curricular activities. In addition to various field trips, students were able to take part in lectures, debates, and even W&L's mock Republican convention.

Students interested in foreign cultures were able to sit in on lectures presented by guest speakers on such topics as Judaism, and countries which included Great Britain, Austria, and Belgium. An Iranian student, who is also a former LHS student, spoke briefly to one government class about the turmoil in Iran and his feelings concerning the situation as a college student in the U.S.

Students who showed an inclination for arguing were provided an opportunity to put their skills to use in debates. Debates included such topics as freedom of the press and ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment. A U.S. Army recruiter even gave an enlightening lecture on patriotism and the possibility of a military career!

Political science buffs had a special opportunity to see the American political machine in action through their participation in the Washington and Lee Republican mock convention. In addition to domestic politics, six seniors also observed foreign politics by taking part in the Model United Nations debate held at V.M.I.; Sheri Canfield and George Foresman received second place for best delegation.

Students enrolled in economics will never forget their trip to the Morton Frozen Foods factory where they watched dozens and dozens of donuts flow down the assembly line. Miss Ramsey led her economics class through a rough year of watching the economy sink further and further and . . .

The year came to a close with the traditional senior government sponsored field trip to Washington D.C. It was a chance to learn about our nation's capitol and to strengthen friendships.

As part of W&L's mock convention's New York delegation, Joe Sprott, Foster Friedman, Paul Fogo, and David Jarrard visually voice their support for presidential candidate Ronald Reagan.

Having completed her typing assignment, senior Terri Berringer spends her last minutes of class writing a note to a friend.

Reading the instructions for her newly assigned homework, Lisa Hatcher prepares to get it done.

While Mrs. Joan Whitesell times their dictation speed, fourth year business students write in shorthand.

Pulling the carbon back, Mary McCaleb makes typing corrections on a business letter.

Three place in EB business meet

Some students may speak one hundred words per minute, others may write one hundred words per minute, but only in an advanced business class can one find a person who knows asdf jkl; well enough to type one hundred words per minute!

This year three girls attended and competed in the Elizabeth Brant First Annual Invitational Business Skills Meet. Junior Monica Mears placed second in the spelling competition and senior Patricia Merchant placed second in shorthand dictation with a score of one hundred words per minute.

Seventeen girls were employed in fifteen different area offices through the Cooperative Office Education Program. The FBLA co-sponsored a walk-a-thon for the March of Dimes with Parry McCluer's FBLA.

COE and FBLA held a joint banquet in late May for members' employers.

With her trusty bottle of Liquid Paper beside the typewriter, Tami Carter busily pecks away.

As Lisa Brads and Elaine Wills backcatch, Marty Newcomb swings the bat at the softball.

Physical education students were especially happy to see the grass finally cut; spring hay on the athletic fields made outside sports a bit difficult.

Advanced P.E. offered to juniors, seniors

Only in a physical education class does a student have the opportunity to study subjects that range from the composition of the body to speedball! In the past, physical education has been available only as a required subject for eighth, ninth, and tenth graders; this year, an advanced physical education course was added for interested juniors and seniors. Coach Jeff Stickley taught the eighteen students enrolled in the new class, which dealt primarily with active recreation. Several advanced students commuted to area schools where they assisted elementary P.E. classes.

Dodging the ball, Rhonda Camden seeks cover behind JoAnn Tucker.

Underclassmen enjoy field trips

To many students, the world of science — bacteria, uranium, and lasers — is a serious interest.

This year, earth science students under the supervision of Mrs. Marge Rose and Mr. Emory Potter took field trips to Natural Bridge, the Natural Bridge Caverns, and the V.M.I. Planetarium.

Students displayed science projects at the February Parent/Teacher

Forum meeting. Eighth grade science students heard a talk by Dr. Barlowe Newbolt, head of Washington and Lee's physics department.

Mr. Bond's enriched biology class worked on individual projects using a newly purchased environmental chamber. Chemistry and physics rounded out the offerings in the science department.

Trying to find the solution to a baffling chemistry problem, Paige McThenia thinks two pencils might be helpful.

In eighth grade science class, Amy Irvine, Laura Jones, and Evette Hood work to complete their daily assignment before the bell.

Careful to get the correct amount of sodium chloride, Paul Leonnard assists Mariella Colvin.

Having concluded his lecture, Earl Edwards takes time to joke with his fifth-period physics class.

From pre-algebra to calculus

The math department, headed by Mr. Charles Lauck, offered students a variety of courses from pre-algebra to calculus. Five math teachers taught over 530 of the 843 students enrolled in school. Due to a lack of interest, there was no math club despite the purchase of a new Heath Kit computer for students to toy with in their spare time. The eighth grade Algebra I class took a test in May sponsored by the Virginia Mathematical Association.

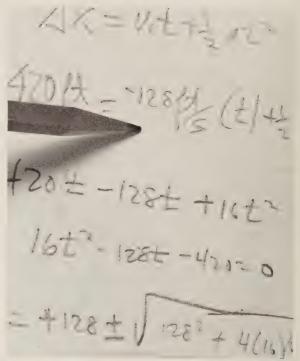

During the winter, a math team composed of seniors Jeff Grist and Janet Kirkley and junior Cindy Huffman competed in a mathematics rally at Radford University. In the spring, a team composed of Janet, Cindy, and senior Mark Morgan met with other high school teams to compete in a contest at Rockbridge High School. Mary Baldwin College, which cosponsored the competition with Washington and Lee University, offered a scholarship to Cindy because of her interest in the school and because of her outstanding performance.

Just the sight of this analysis problem is enough to scare any student.

To Stanley Lewis, Algebra class is a great place to catch up on his sleep while Curt McCullough finds humor in Mrs. Bynum's class.

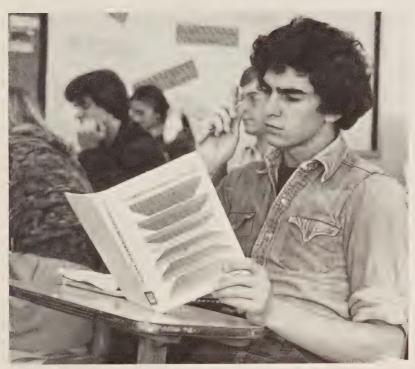

These math students don't even have time to give the photographer a smile as they concentrate on what is going on in their pre-Algebra class.

Jay Villani finds that his analysis takes utmost concentration.

A too familiar sight for those students who seek help from pocket calculators.

While some students who have already finished their assignment wait for the bell to ring, Christie Paxton is in her library book.

PEOPLE

"You know what? I never really knew you until we worked on the Christmas Dance together and that was lots of fun, wasn't it?"

"It was great! I met lots of people this year by doing stuff like participating in sports and joining lots of clubs. School life brings people together and makes them realize that being different isn't so bad — it takes a rainbow of interests and makes all the colors blend together."

"I know. I met my best friend by going to a basketball game — we had a great time. It's times like that when it doesn't matter whether you are an eighth grader, freshman or whatever. You're all coming together to support your school. Whether you're a county person or a city person really doesn't matter — all that matters is that you're a person."

"Being part of LHS is great, don't you think?"

"It's nice to be an individual, but being part of the student body is fantastic! It even makes coming to school worthwhile."

Senior night highlights last year

Under the leadership of class officers, Carlton Peebles, president; E.R. Smith, vice-president and Leslie Harris, secretary-treasurer, the Class of 1980 had a successful last year.

The class united for the first time to plan and carry out the Homecoming Dance and to construct a class Homecoming float. Throughout the year, the class managed to win class competition at several pep rallies — a feat the Class of 1980 had managed to do only once before in LHS history.

During first semester, collegebound seniors kept busy by taking SAT's and achievements and by filling out endless college applications while others made plans for future employment. Second semester and warmer weather brought the annual "senior slump" to the lives of many. Caps, gowns, and announcements were ordered as seniors began to count down the remaining days of high school.

The senior trip and the senior picnic were also part of second semester. The end of April spelled relief for many seniors since it meant the completion of dreadful government and english term papers. No more sleepless nights spent in local libraries!

As the year drew to a final close, seniors gathered together one last time before graduation at Senior Night. Seniors' reflections traveled over the past five years and many realized how close the class had grown, particularly in the last year; while some were saddened by the fact that they might never see many of their classmates again, others were gladdened that everyone would soon pursue their own paths — their own interests — their own rainbows.

At home on a tractor

While most seniors were still mastering the art of tinker toy building, Perry Huffman was a connoisseur with a tractor. By merely observing Perry within his farming family, it becomes clear that he has the qualities it takes to be a good farmer and that he knows the business.

Although farming takes up much of his time, Perry does manage other activities. He is active in both 4·H and FFA; Perry placed second in the state 4·H Tractor Driving Contest. He will attend Ferrum College where he plans to major in agriculture.

Perry plans to continue his career in farming because he "likes working outside and being his own boss."

"Helping others"

Hanging out at the firehouse and fighting flames has captured the hearts of two seniors. "Helping others" is what Clay Graves and Robert Knick say they enjoy about being part of the Lexington Fire Department. Clay has been a certified fireman for twelve months and Robert for twenty months; certification requires a minimum of thirty hours in fire training.

INTEREST -

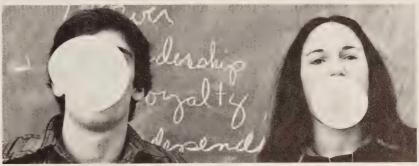

Year after year

As eighth graders, many members of the Class of 1980 stood in the bleachers at assemblies and gazed in awe as the Class of 1975 marched to the front of the gym and sat in five long rows of reserved seats. "Marching in" at assemblies was only one of many traditional privileges enjoyed by the senior class.

Dismissal from class three minutes before the lunch bell was also quite a privilege; seniors were seated in the cafeteria enjoying their lunches long before the mobs of hungry underclassmen were even out of class! A senior lounge, located in the home ec department and complete with television, was a new privilege created for the enjoyment of seniors during lunches.

Traditions were also common in many senior classrooms. A bubble gum blowing contest and birthday celebrations were traditions carried out in Mrs. Hays' first period government class.

Clockwise. With a kiss, Andy John helps to celebrate Mollie Rorrer's birthday. John Hunter leads the gum blowing contest. Seniors march into an assembly.

Just horsin' around

How do seniors Janet Kirkley and Ariadne Pantaze spend their spare time? — with friends; four-legged friends. The girls are only two of many LHS students who enjoy the companionship and sport of horses.

Amberlyn, a half-Arabian bay mare, has sailed over hundreds of jumps and galloped many miles piloted by her master Janet. Janet, who has ridden for seven years, finds two to three hours each day to be with her horse. The long trail rides and ring work represent only a small amount of time Janet spends with Amberlyn; feeding and grooming are an important part of each day's agenda also.

Rossi, a compact quarter horse thoroughbred gelding, has carried Ariadne over the rolling hills of Rockbridge County hunt country.

Pink and green and gators

An epidemic of sorts hit the halls those who caught it into a large, of school the very day students reported and persisted up to the very end. Among the virus' many symptons were colorful LaCoste shirts, madras slacks, skirts and jackets, tri-colored belts, ad-a-bead necklaces, and pink and green, pink and green, pink and ...

The epidemic not only grasped students but also faculty members; many teachers joined in on the gay, colorful obsession. Other students protested the epidemic violently by preaching "anti-alligator" sermons. Although actual brutality never occured, several demonstrators went so far as to cross out the gators on their LaCoste shirts!

Whether this epidemic was indeed a malicious one is an unanswerable question. One thing is certain however; the virus threw party-oriented, pink and green mass!

The class of 1981 had quite a busy time of it this year as they hurried to earn money and otherwise prepare for the all important Prom, to be held on May 17. After electing officers Lee Glenn (president), Sara Peebles (vice-president), and Kate Weatherman (secretary-treasurer), the juniors got right to work on the "Brewbakerfield Horror," their spirited Homecoming float. Also during Homecoming, the juniors took corsage and boutonniere orders, filled by the Flower Center, from couples going to the dance. These projects started the class on its way.

Fall was especially hectic, when the juniors sponsored a Garage and Bake Sale, held at LHS, sold programs at W&L football games, and even managed to plan the annual Powderpuff game. But the work wasn't over yet! Next on the agenda was the Christmas Dance, "Santa's Place," which proved to be very successful.

After Christmas Vacation, juniors sold jewelry and handed out W&L Lacrosse programs to give the treasury a last boost before Prom plans began.

Eight in ham radio club

This year several LHS students were involved in the local HAM Radio Club. Bryan Balazs, John Adams, Jack Delaney, Skippy Williams, Charlie Lauck, Davidson Scott, Tommy Imeson, and Dean McFaddin were members of the club. They participated in its various projects, which included teaching a course at W&L on qualification for HAM operators' licenses, setting up a HAM display at the Rockbridge Community Festival and practicing emergency actions to be used in case of natural disaster (During floods, hurricanes, et cetera, HAM operators provide much needed communication services.).

Several of the guys involved said that they intend to go on to careers in electronics fields, but others were just along for the fun!

A not-so-new past time became part of LHS life this year with the advent of tobacco chewing. Mostly enjoyed by members of the Varsity Football team, tobacco soon popped up in classrooms, PE classes, assemblies, and even at PSAT's! Said junior Marvin Smith, "For guys who don't want to smoke, it's something to do." Varsity football player Lee Glenn commented that tobacco chewing "relieves the tension."

Although it was almost exclusively enjoyed by the guys, senior Kelly Fallon was once seen to take a "chaw" on a dare from junior coach Lee Glenn at Powderpuff practice. "It's not so bad once you get used to it," she said.

During lunchtime, Al Gattis, Patrick Berry, John Baker, Wayne Nicely, and Brett Hamric find time for 'a chew'.

Class float places second

Although many sophomores exulted in the fact that they were finally in the middle of everything, they were still able to get down to business and elect class officers. The class of '82 chose Cheryl Painter, president; Mike McNeese, vice-president; and Helen Peebles, secretary-treasurer. Honor Committee representatives were Betsy Littlefield and Robert Staton.

Homecoming Court representatives Carrie Fallon and Donna Bryant kept smiling faces as they rode on the float titled "Behead the Lee men," which received second place out of five floats judged. As winter projects, the sophomores sold "Class of '82" t-shirts and held many bake sales in order to make money for the Valentine Dance. All who came with disc jockey Leohnard "Chewy" Stuart agreed that the dance was very successful.

Other spring money-making projects were selling posters and holding car washes and bake sales. With the guidance of sophomore sponsors Mrs. Diller, Mr. Clark, Mrs. Freeman and Coach Stickley, the class of '82 had a fantastic year and anticipate making their junior year even better.

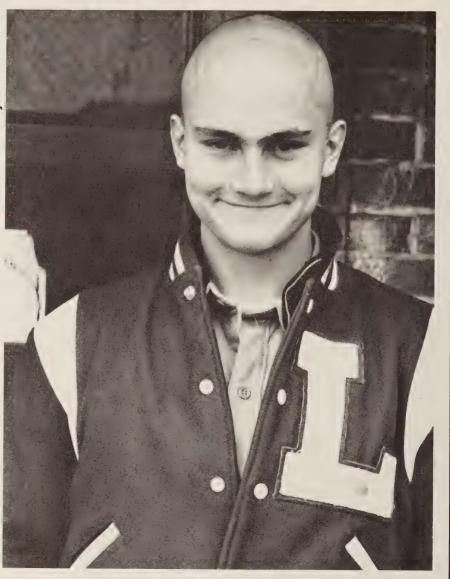

Hocker goes for the bald look

Sophomore Andy Hocker wanted to try a new, easy-care hairstyle this winter so he opted for the bald look! After getting fifty-two dollars in bets that he wouldn't do it, Andy went down to the barber shop and had his head shaved! Partly for kicks, but partly for the money, Andy was bald. Although he only collected twenty-six dollars of the fifty-two, and he had to wear a knitted hat to keep his head warm, Andy seemed to think his place in the LHS Hall of Fame was worth it!

After Andy, several other guys decided to try a new cut. John Adams, Craig Gupton, Al Gattis, Jeff Ax, and Bobby Shields all got Gl's — not bald, but pretty close!

Many girls were heard to say that they hoped this didn't become a Unisex Fad!

Exactly one day after his journey to the barber shop, Andy Hocker poses for photograher Lloyd Glenn.

CAP Cadet Commander is 'up in the air'

During rescue training, Todd prepares to take a drink from his trusty canteen.

Sophomore Todd McCullough became this year's CAP CC — the Civil Air Patrol Cadet Commander in the Blue Ridge Composite Squadron, located in Lexington. Todd has been a member of CAP, the official civilian auxiliary to the U.S. Air Force, for two and one-half years. As Cadet Commander, his job was to instruct new cadets on CAP procedures and techniques.

The Civil Air Patrol's duties include search and rescue operations for downed planes and missing persons, disaster relief, and aerospace education: basic flight principles, navigation, and weather.

Todd said he intends to pursue a career in the Air Force as a result of his CAP training.

Luvkins and a spirit award

The class of '83 entered its second year at LHS with open minds. The rainbow of interests which pervaded this class can easily be seen as one reviews its many events.

In September, the class elected officers for the new school year. They were Rob Brittigan, president and Honor Committee representative; Chris Fure, vice-president; and Clara Hocker, secretary-treasurer. Under the superb leadership of those officers, the freshman class was able to reach many goals.

The class worked as a group to improve its financial status. Moneymaking projects began with the selling of refreshments during the Girls' Basketball and J.V. Football games. In December, the sale of Merry Bells, Luvkins, and jewelry were very successful. The class sponsored a spaghetti dinner in the spring.

Homecoming week was successful and involved the fabrication of the freshman float with a theme of "Blow Away the Lee-men." The class constructed the float with the help of the Rorrers and other tolerant parents in Mr. Newcomber's barn. The freshmen received a third prize check which was added to the treasury. During an assembly, the class elected Jamie Mays and Debbie Claytor as Homecoming representatives. Following the Homecoming parade, a pep rally was held and the freshman class won the spirit award.

Because of the help given to the class of '83 by the faculty, the excellent sponsors, and the many parents, the freshman class is looking forward to another year at LHS.

Look out Hollywood! Here comes Wilson!

When approached for an interview, Wilson Mays was surprised to learn that he was considered a real live "actor," but he soon accepted this opinion and sat down for a talk.

Wilson had only been acting since eighth grade. Although he wasn't in the drama club, he was in the choir and performed in the Variety shows, which include skits and songs. At the end of his first year at LHS, he got a part in the play "Godspell." It was a memorable experience for Wilson because the case became like a family and regretted having to break up when the performances were over. Because of his obligation to the wrestling team, Wilson hasn't participated in many drama activities in his freshman year, but he plans to get into as much as he can next year.

When asked about his near future plans, he said that he plans to get a summer job at "Disneyland," with Mr. Clark's help. He will be "talking like Donald Duck and stuff like that." After high school, he plans to go to college in Maine, where he will really settle down to study drama. He states that he'll play any role, as long as he doesn't have to be a girl or anything like that.

Wilson says he will make a career out of acting — he definitely wants to go to Hollywood. "There are too many actors these days though," he says, "there are hundreds of them starving in New York." Maybe so, but Wilson won't have to worry about that. With his talent, drive, and ability, he probably will be a very successful actor.

Holidays bring out the best

Clockwise. Holly Lowsley and Lynne Jamison don green on St. Patrick's Day. A pile of Valentine's dance decorations. Lesa Williams celebrates Valentine's day at the annual dance.

Nothing brings out the best in LHS students like holidays — from national holidays like St. Patrick's Day and Valentine's Day to school holidays like Homecoming. Students and teachers are likely to do just about anything when holidays arise to break the monotony of school days.

Likely no one will ever forget the joys felt and the benefits reaped as a result of holidays. Remember when you were suffering from the Wintertime Blahs and Christmas break saved you? Remember that St. Patrick's Day you forgot and that special person pinched you because of the absence of green? And lastly, don't forget the cold, December day when librarian, Linda Thorne's brightly colored Christmas package hair ribbons brought a smile to your face.

Holidays also call for special celebrations; Christmas, Valentine's Day, and Homecoming are all celebrated with dances.

Eighth Graders Create First Place Float

The eighth grade class at LHS got off to a good start as it began its climb to the end of a very important time in everyone's life — the high school years. During the first assembly, the staff and some of the students stressed the importance of good school behavior. The class obviously listened because the administration and the eighth grade sponsors commended their behavior at the assembly.

Class elections, which took place in October, found the following students as officers: Amy Carter, president; Jon Mamon, vice-president; and Frank Friedman, secretary-treasurer. Lynne Draper was chosen to represent the class on the Honor Council.

Everyone became excited as the Homecoming celebration approached. With the much appreciated help of Stephanie Shorter's parents, the class of '84 began work on its Homecoming float, never dreaming that the float entitled "Give Lee the Coach Mack Attack," would win first prize. Laura Jones proudly sat on the prize winning float as the Homecoming representative.

By October, most of the students had settled into the routine of high school life and eagerly awaited Thanksgiving and Christmas break.

After exams in January, the class officers met and planned to decorate the upstairs bulletin boards. With proceeds from a bake sale, the eighth grade class held a raffle.

After a successful first year at LHS, the class of '84 is hoping that the remaining years will be as good or even better.

Similarities only Skin Deep

Have you ever wondered what it would be like to have a twin? Well, six eighth graders know what it is like. They are Charlene and Darlene Nicholas, Clifford and Clinton Staton, and Hugo and Jeff Kostelni.

Hugo and Jeff were asked if they liked being twins. They said that sometimes they did, but that they get sick of each other because they are always together, even at school.

When asked if they're often mistaken to be the other twin, Hugo says, "Sure!" Still, they don't mind because they know they have different personalities and abilities. Jeff stated, "Hugo works hard to get straight A's and I am lazy." No two people are exactly alike!

Digital Derby in the Classroom

While Ms. Marr is introducing him to variables and Mr. Edwards is teaching cloud formations, eighth grader Eric Walker spends his time playing electronic games. When asked why he plays them, Eric said "It annoys the teachers and it's fun. It's something to do when you don't have anything to do."

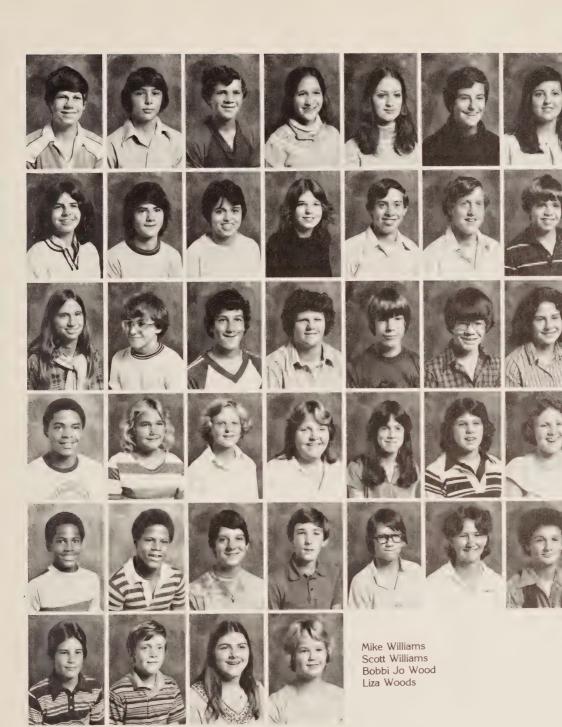

Eric says he has four games, football, baseball, digital derby, and basketball, which is his favorite.

For many students these new pocket computers have become a popular pastime, not only in the halls, but in classrooms and assemblies, too.

While Ms. Marr drills away at algebraic formulas, Eric hears only the d-d-d of his electronic basketball game.

A hobby worth a thousand words

"It used to be in quite a fix but is a little more developed now," said LHS photo advisor Mr. Earl Edwards of the school's darkroom. Since Mr. Edwards became photo advisor for those students interested in photography, he has initiated vast betterments in the school's darkroom and photographic facilities; among the improvements are a system for organizing negatives and proofs, the purchase of several school cameras, the purchase of an enlarger, and the move from a small darkroom to a much larger one. At present, the darkroom is equipped to develop and print only black and white film, but, commented Mr. Edwards, "is on the verge of being equipped to handle color film."

Mr. Edwards first became interested in photography as a senior at LHS; in 1965 he was a photographer for the Crystal staff. One year later, a freshman at Washington and Lee University, he purchased his first camera and enrolled in several photography courses where he began to regard photography as a creative art. In 1969, he was appointed photo editor of W&L's yearbook, the Calyx and of the campus newspaper, Ring Tum Phi.

One Crystal photographer commented, "Earl's got the right attitude when it comes to working with beginning photographers. He's very helpful."

While most students were sitting down to Thanksgiving dinner, Ms. Pat Randolph was dancing; Ms. Randolph spent Thanksgiving vacation competing at a dance contest in Atlanta, Georgia. She walked away with a first place trophy in waltz and a first place trophy in disco.

Ms. Randolph began taking lessons four years ago at Mr. Goodbar's School of Dance in Roanoke, Virginia. Since attending Mr. Goodbar's school, Ms. Randolph has become a dance teacher herself. For two years, she has taught disco and social dance at Dabney S. Lancaster Community College; she has taught disco for the Lexington and Rockbridge County Recreational departments; she gives private lessons in her home which is equipped with a dance studio in the basement. When asked if she has any ambitions, Pat Randolph replied, "Oh, just to keep on dancing."

"Methobapterian"

LHS' 6'7" basketball coach John Whitesell can do more than dribble and shoot a basketball and 5'3" business teacher Mrs. Joan Whitesell can do more than peck away at a typewriter; the husband-wife couple can sing and sing they do. For about six years, Mrs. Whitesell has sung alto and Mr. Whitesell has been lead singer for a gospel group known as the Good News Quartet. The quartet is representative of Baptist, Methodist and Presbyterian denominations: one minister labeled them "Methobapterian." The group has produced two albums, "What a Wonderful Feeling" in 1977 and "Lord, Don't Move that Mountain" in 1980, both available on record or tape. When asked if they had made any profit from the sale of their albums Mrs. Whitesell replied, "What money we've made John and I put back into the quartet to pay for our sound equipment and recording expenses.'

Coaches form their own team

Nine members of a ten member basketball team which competed in the Lexington City League shared something in common; the nine players were members of the faculty and, not surprisingly, all coached some school sport. Sponsored by the First National Bank of Lexington, the newly formed team was composed of Mr. Mike Brown, Mr. Denny Clark, Mr. Earl Edwards, Mr. Ed Kihm, Mr. Paul Leonhard, Mr. "Howdy" Mack, Mr. Ralph Moore, Mr. Jeff Stickley, and Mr. John Whitesell.

Nine members of a ten member At halfway through the season, the team was 6-1. Mr. Paul Leonard felt confident that their final season mething in common; the nine record would be 11-1.

Neither Ms. Yvonne Emerson nor Ms. Pam Tinsley can spin gold like Rumpelstiltskin did for the miller's daughter, but they can both spin Scottish blackface, mohair, silk, or sheep's wool. Ms. Emerson and Ms. Tinsley both enrolled in a ten week spinning workshop taught by local craftsman Joan Ruff. When asked why she decided to take a class in spinning, Ms. Emerson replied, "It's very simple. I got interested in it because I had a spinning wheel and didn't know how to use it." Ms. Tinsley's reply to the same question was, "As an artist, I've always been interested in weaving and spinning. After seeing an ad in the newspaper, I decided to take the course.'

At Kennametal, employees who satisfactorily complete an approved course are reimbursed for tuition charges, registration fees, textbooks, and laboratory fees.

The program includes correspondence courses, adult education programs and vocational school programs, as well as regular college credit courses.

Definitely possessing individuality, Mr. Bond impersonates President Carter on the steps of the Capitol.

A world apart ...

Every student possesses individuality in some manner. Some students enjoy swinging a bat at a ball and almost never miss the ball. Others prefer brushing paint on a canvas and manage to create a beautiful portrayal of rolling hills or a city street.

Individuality is favorable. Imagine the length of try-outs if everyone enjoyed theatre and wanted a part in the drama club's spring production. And imagine the long faces of eight hundred and forty students after the announcement of the ten-member cast.

Though individual interests vary, 220 closing everyone is affected by the interests of everyone else. In creating their tropical cruise, each member of the Class of 1979 may not have known how to hang the parachute or how to paint a Hawaiian beach but some junior did; somebody climbed the cherry picker to hang the parachute from the rafters and somebody dipped a brush in a coffee can filled with paint and then painted sand and water.

Rising above the tree tops, Ricky Lewis makes a jump that contributed to LHS' impressive showing at Western Albemarle High School.

Photographing his class on the Capitol steps, senior Lloyd Glenn contributes his talent to the Crystal's publication.

With Pete Sisson as her comforter, Lesa Williams wipes away her tears at Senior night.

Enjoying the advent of spring, Robert Glenn, Donna Wetmore, and Alexia Pantaze sit on the hill during first lunch.

At the Harrisonburg football game, members of the color guard perform a burlesque dance on the bleachers.

A rainbow together

By itself, yellow is just yellow, but stick it between red and orange and it becomes a part of the rainbow.

Each and every student and teacher who traveled daily through the bright red front doors Monday through Friday had his own interests and ideas. Interests and talents that came together in the classroom and on the football field to make an impact much like the colors come together to form the rainbow.

Selling refreshments at a basketball game, Kathy McElroy and Skippy Williams take a break during a period of little business.
